

For Immediate Release – Behmor Brazen Plus receives SCAA Home Brewer Certification
July 21, 2014

We're pleased to announce the arrival of a new home brewer on the scene for those seeking the ultimate coffee extraction quality at home: the Brazen Plus Customizable Temperature Control Brew System from Behmor. The Brazen Plus is the first brewer to achieve this certification under SCAA's more rigorous, updated testing requirements.

The brewer is the result of a singular vision: Joe Behm, founder of Behmor, Inc and Engineer for the Brazen Plus, believed that coffee brewing consumers needed some of the specifications and better brewing quality associated with commercial coffee-brewing equipment. Joe set out to create a consumer coffee brewer that was unparalleled in features that will result in superior brewing quality. It wasn't enough to include temperature control from 190F-210F. It wasn't enough to include an oversized showerhead and pulsed water flow for better grounds saturation and extraction. Additional features like pre-soak to allow fresh coffees to bloom similar to manual pour over brewing, an oversized coffee basket for heavier coffee loading, and temperature calibration for those that don't live at sea level complete the picture. It's evident that no effort has been spared to bring precision brewing quality and customization to the home consumer.

Todd Larrabee from Behmor had this to say about their quest for SCAA certification: "The SCAA is at the center of specialty coffee. The industry and aware consumers pay close attention to the topics and certifications that SCAA tackles. Achieving the SCAA Home Brewer Certification puts the Brazen Plus in an elite group with very few other consumer brewers." The Brazen Plus Customizable Temperature Control Brew System is available as of late July, 2014. MAP retail is $199.00.
